

John Peeters

My name is John Peeters, I am 47 and I work in the Mushroom industry on a professional basis since 1984. Since my parents owned a mushroom farm, I was basically raised in that environment – but I chose to have a career in the industry in 1984 when I saw the opportunities for travel, while attending the Dutch Mushroom School (CCO) in Horst. I started up farms in several countries of this world, such as Japan, USA, Australia, South Africa, UK, Switzerland, Cyprus, France and Germany, and have run mushroom farms and compost yards in several countries in Europe. I worked for Jan Huys and Dalsem to do start-ups and several well-known mushroom farms. Since 1999 my experience is broadened by consulting work and teaching for C point, and in 2008 I started my own company, where I have several European mushroom farms under my wings to give them advice and structure. I also write for Mushroom Business Magazine.
